Education is in crisis

- “Over the past two decades, the way we learn has changed dramatically.
- We have new sources of information and new ways to exchange and to interact with information.
- Schools and the way we teach have remained largely the same for years, even centuries”

Pew Research Centre survey shows:

- More than 75 percent of teens own cell phones.
- 73 percent use online social networking sites.
- 38 percent share something online that they created, such as artwork, photos, stories, or videos.

Nielson Wire Report:

- Teenagers averaged 3,339 sent and received texts a month!

Engaging students on their own terms

“..create assignments, projects and techniques to capture your students' attention.

Projects should be technology-rich, highly engaging, and fun learning experiences that reflect real-world skills.”

The screenshot shows a Tricider page for a course. The header includes the Tricider logo, a '+ Create new tricision' button, and the user name 'NikPeachey'. The main heading is 'What would you like to learn from this course?' with a 'time is up' warning and links for 'Complete tricision' and 'change deadline'. Below the heading, there are instructions: 'Read the suggestions below. Add Pros and Cons for the ones included here and add some of your own suggestions for what you would like to learn on this course.' and 'When you have finished vote for the 5 you think are most important. You don't need to register.' There are buttons for 'Share and Invite' and 'Unsubscribe from updates'. The main content is a table with three columns: 'Ideas', 'Pros and cons', and 'Votes'. The 'Ideas' column lists suggestions like 'Learn how to create motivating homework assignments'. The 'Pros and cons' column contains user comments with 'more' links. The 'Votes' column shows a vote count of 8 and a 'Vote' button, with a list of voters: 'Amadeu, Lynn, Diarmuid and 5 more'.

Crowdsourcing Knowledge with Students

- Set up some controversial statements and get students to vote for the ones they agree / disagree with and leave pro and con comments. Controversial Issues
- Your statements could be about a particular book your students are studying and they could add arguments for or against. Goldilocks and the 3 Bears
- Students brainstorm word or phrases based around a theme. Computer Phrases
- Students vote on a list of topics they want to study. Topics
- Get students to brainstorm, debate and share knowledge about any particular topic or even language point. Example: Present Continuous
- Set up true false questions to check comprehension of a text.
- Create action research questionnaires to get feedback on the things you do in class. Example: Things we do in Class
- Create needs analysis questionnaires for your students or other colleagues. Example: Needs Analysis
- Get students create their own questionnaires and circulate them online (through Twitter or Facebook) to collect opinions.

Create Video Questionnaires

- Create comprehension check questions to go with reading homework so that students also do some speaking for homework.
- Create opinion polls for students to answer.
- Make action research questionnaires
- Play the alibi game and get students to explain where they were and what they were doing at particular points in time.
- Ask students about childhood memories.
- Set oral tests
- Collect what they know about any topic

The screenshot shows the mailVU website interface. At the top left is the mailVU logo with the tagline "mail you can view". To the right is a navigation bar with links for HOME, PRODUCTS & PRICING, ABOUT US, SIGN UP, and LOGIN. Below the navigation bar is a main heading: "Unleash the Power of Video with the Simplicity of Email." Below this heading is a video recording control panel. On the left side of the panel, it says "Try it FREE!" followed by a numbered list: "1 Click", "2 Record", and "3 Send". An orange arrow points from the "Send" step towards a video player. The video player shows a man speaking. To the right of the video player are several controls: a "Record" button (a red dot in a circle), a "Play" button (a play icon in a circle), a "Click 'Record' to start" instruction, a "Mic Level" indicator with a horizontal bar, a "Send" button (an envelope icon), and a "Share" button (two people icons). At the bottom left of the video player, there are small icons for a camera and a microphone.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the Scribe toolbar highlighted in red. The toolbar includes icons for text selection, bolding, italicizing, underlining, and other text formatting options. Below the toolbar, the article title "Infographic: The rising numbers of tablets in the workplace" is displayed. The article is by Doug Drinkwater, dated January 19, 2012. A yellow sticky note is placed over the text "Infographic is a type of visual information". The infographic itself shows a tablet device and text describing its use in the workplace.

The screenshot shows the website's navigation bar with links for Home, Bell Group, Useful information, Jobs, Agents, and eZone. A language selector is set to 简体中文. The main menu includes Courses, Locations, Student Life, and Contact. A large banner image shows three people in a classroom setting, with an orange overlay at the bottom containing the text "Teacher Training and Development" and social media icons. Below the banner, a breadcrumb trail reads "Home > Courses > Teacher courses". The main heading is "ELT teacher training and development courses". The text describes the competitive market for TEFL and lists various courses offered, from basic CELTA to advanced Language and Methodology classes. At the bottom, there are three columns with icons and titles: "Teacher training courses" (with a photo of a woman), "Teacher development courses" (with a photo of a man and woman at a desk), and "Online courses" (with a photo of a laptop and notebook).
